"The imports of Hawaiian sugar into San Francisco, which is practically the only existing market for this produce, during the first eight months of this year amounted to 96,792 tons, valued at $8,985,081, and from the Ist to the 8th of September, there were arrived and on the way 5,000 tons, valued at $464,160, making a total import from January to the 8th of September of 101,792 tons, valued at $9,449,258. This is the largest export of sugar from the Hawaiian Islands that has ever been recorded, and although the season is practically over, there still remain some hundreds of tons of sugar to be shipped from the islands, which will increase the to-tal export for the year to over 102,000 tons,

"On dolt tonjours flaner!" I see by the papers that your two Kings have had a slight misunderstanding, and that all negotiations for the present are broken off. The "Sugar King" sizes up the other one pretty accurately. This reminds me of the old saw—"When rogues fall out," etc. Claus has "sand" in him and plenty of money to back it up, and he will make a strong night for the game before he gives up. It's really too bad for Claus to "give away" his old "pat," and let out the family secrets -how the other one wanted a fleet, and all that to go and see the Prince of Whales in Royal Style at Australia, and if possible make the latter sick with envy. I think some of taking a run over to the Coast soon, and will call on the Sugar King. I know him well; I used to drive a beer wagon for him in days gone by when he ran a brewery in 'Frisco.

I watched the people on the sidewalk; there was a broad grin extending along both sides of the street. The public festivities have proved a dead failure so far.

I hear the kahunas say the akuas are angry, and certainly it seems as if they were. Another explanation of the rain is that the spirits of the old chiefs are weeping over their degenerate descendants.
